

The Greatest Risk To O&G Jobs?

Automation Replacing Workers!

The Good News!!

The skills that oil and gas workers have developed, the technology and engineering skills that are applicable to drilling and fracking translate almost directly to tapping into geothermal energy. PLUS there are the ever growing number jobs in the wind turbine and solar energy fields PLUS there will be a growing need for people to manufacture, install and maintain charging stations for electric cars.

There is no reason for to import people from elsewhere to fill these stable jobs that have far more promise for longevity, all the talent, skill and expertise needed to help Colorado move forward to a better future is already here.
