- for the offense; or
- The petitioner is 60 years old or older at the time of filing the petition and has served at least 20 calendar years incarcerated for the offense.

At the hearing on the petition, the petitioner has the burden to show by a preponderance of the evidence that the petitioner no longer presents an identifiable danger to the safety of any person or the community and that there is good cause for the court to modify the sentence. Certain offenses require that the prosecution agree that the interests of justice would be served by departure from the sentence initially imposed.

Upon the court finding that the petitioner has met their burden, the petitioner is permitted to file a motion for reconsideration and reduction of the initial sentence pursuant to the Colorado rules of criminal procedure. At the hearing on the motion, the court shall determine and impose the appropriate sentence.

1 Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Colorado:

2 SECTION 1. Legislative declaration. (1) The general assembly
3 finds and declares that:

4 (a) It is the responsibility of the general assembly to establish 5 penalties for crimes, which often require long incarceration sentences to 6 punish and incapacitate persons convicted of serious offenses;

7 (b) While long sentences are appropriate and necessary in certain
8 cases, providing the opportunity for individuals in lower-risk populations
9 to be considered for sentence reduction based on demonstrated
10 rehabilitation after they have served decades in prison incentivizes
11 positive behavior and is consistent with public safety;

12 (c) Very lengthy sentences present significant public policy issues
13 that the general assembly must consider, including the ability of the state 14 to meet its constitutional requirement to provide medical care to the 15 incarcerated population and the fiscal cost of the state prison system;

16 == ==

1 (d) Persons who are over 60 years old and have been incarcerated
2 for more than 20 years present a significantly low risk to public safety and
3 disproportionately account for medical expenses and care utilization
4 within the prison system;

5 (e) The interests of justice are best served by providing to persons
6 who have aged out of risk to public safety the due process to have 7 their sentences reconsidered if they can provide evidence of their 8 rehabilitation; and

9 (f) Providing the person incarcerated, the prosecution, and any
10 victims of the crime the opportunity to be heard at a single public hearing
11 ensures a fair and transparent deliberative process and recognizes that 12 hope and change have a place in our criminal legal system.

13 SECTION 2. In Colorado Revised Statutes, add 18-1.3-411 as 14 follows:
