CONCERNING CREATION OF THE JUSTICE REINVESTMENT CRIME PREVENTION INITIATIVE, AND, IN CONNECTION THEREWITH, FUNDING THE INITIATIVE THROUGH SAVINGS CREATED BY PAROLE REFORMS AND MAKING AND REDUCING AN APPROPRIATION.

Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Colorado:

SECTION 1. Legislative declaration. (1) The general assembly finds and declares that:

(a) On any given day, there are over 100,000 Coloradans either incarcerated or otherwise under some form of criminal justice supervision at a cost of well over one billion dollars to the state budget annually;

(b) However, many of the neighborhoods that experience higher crime see little to no reduction in crime overall because public safety strategies largely react to crime after the fact and fail to adequately address the root causes of crime;

(c) Law enforcement agencies take their role in helping to promote public safety very seriously, and they care very deeply about the communities they serve. However, it is not the role of law enforcement to address community challenges that impact crime rates such as unemployment, high school dropout rates, homelessness, or people in crisis due to mental illness or addiction.

(d) By many metrics, the overuse of the criminal justice system brings its own set of unintended, negative consequences by damaging families, straining police and community relations, undermining the legitimacy of the criminal justice system due to racial disparity, underserving crime victims, and making it harder for people with a criminal record to find employment and housing to support their families;

(e) Colorado must develop a new paradigm related to public safety that is a more comprehensive, community-based approach that focuses on crime prevention from a community development perspective. This paradigm combines crime prevention, economic development, mental health and trauma recovery treatment, improving academic achievement, strengthening families, and other targeted direct services into our core public safety strategies. This new paradigm must be based on an understanding that community development strategies are also important public safety strategies.

(f) This new public safety paradigm framework is based on several key components. First, it needs to be geographically targeted to focus on neighborhoods that have higher rates of crime. Often attempts at crime prevention have been too dispersed to have the desired impact. Second, people at the local level are best positioned to identify crime prevention and community development priorities. Third, in order to reduce crime rates, multiple strategies must be deployed simultaneously and in a coordinated fashion. Finally, there must be engagement from the public sector and the private sector, including business, philanthropy, and nonprofit organizations.

(g) Justice reinvestment is also an important component of this new crime prevention framework. Justice reinvestment is an approach that identifies current ineffective expenditures in criminal justice spending, reforms those laws and practices, and reinvests the savings into other public safety strategies. Justice reinvestment has been utilized in many states across the country, including Colorado.

(2) Therefore, the general assembly determines it is in the best interest of the state to implement parole reforms to fund a justice reinvestment crime prevention initiative.
