The bill amends employment discrimination laws, commonly referred to as the "Colorado Anti-discrimination Act" or "CADA", as follows:

- Expands the definition of "employee" to include individuals in domestic service;
- Extends the time limit to file a charge with the Colorado civil rights commission from 6 months to 300 days after the alleged discriminatory or unfair employment practice occurred; and
- Repeals the prohibition, applicable in age discrimination cases only, against the relief and recovery of certain damages so that the remedies available in employment discrimination claims are consistent, regardless of the type of discrimination alleged.

1 Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Colorado:

2 SECTION 1. Legislative declaration. (1) The general assembly
3 finds and declares that:

4 (a) Under Colorado employment discrimination law in effect
5 before the enactment of House Bill 22-1367:

6 (I) A worker alleging workplace discrimination or harassment is
7 allowed only 180 days to file a complaint with the Colorado civil rights
8 commission, whereas a worker filing a complaint under federal
9 employment discrimination law is allowed 300 days to file a complaint
10 with the federal equal employment opportunity commission;

11 (II) Domestic workers are excluded from the protections afforded 12 other workers; and

13 (III) Workers who are victims of discrimination on the basis of 14 age are not afforded the same remedies that are available to victims of 15 other forms of workplace discrimination; and

16 (b) It is important to enact House Bill 22-1367 to:

1 (I) Eliminate the different deadline for filing a discrimination or
2 harassment complaint under state law to ensure that Colorado workers
3 filing a complaint under state law have the same amount of time to file
4 the complaint as any worker filing a complaint under federal law;

5 (II) Afford domestic workers the same protections against 6 discrimination and harassment in the workplace that are afforded other 7 workers in the state; and

8 (III) Provide all Colorado workers who are victims of 9 discrimination or harassment in the workplace consistent remedies.
