Summary of Legislation

The administration of the Asbestos Control Act by the Department of Public Health and Environment is set to expire September 1, 2022. This bill continues the program until September 1, 2027, removes provisions that prohibit rules under the Act from being more restrictive than the laws and regulations under the federal Occupational Safety and Health Act; clarifies who requires certification in asbestos control, and requires local governments to include specific language regarding asbestos inspections on building permits.

Background

The Indoor Environment Program within the Air Pollution Control Division at the Colorado Department of Public Health and Environment is responsible for asbestos regulatory compliance in the state. The program is authorized and obligated to enforce the federal National Emission Standards for Hazardous Air Pollutants regarding asbestos in public and commercial buildings, the federal Asbestos Hazard Emergency Response Act regarding asbestos in schools, and the federal Asbestos School Hazard Abatement Reauthorization Act, which extends certification requirements to public and commercial buildings. Funding for asbestos control administration includes fees for permits for asbestos abatement and demolition and the testing and certification of individuals and companies involved in asbestos abatement activities. Continuing Program Impacts

Based on the department's FY 2022-23 budget request, the Department of Public Health and Environment is expected to have revenue and expenditures of $1,903,215 to administer the Asbestos Program, including the certification of asbestos control professionals. If this bill is enacted, current revenue and expenditures will continue for the program starting in FY 2023-24. This continuing revenue is subject to the state TABOR limit. If this bill is not enacted, the program will end on September 1, 2023, following a wind-down period, and state revenue and expenditures will decrease starting in FY 2023 24 by the amounts shown in Table 1, above.

Local Government

When updating application forms for building permits, local governments will add the language specified in the bill, which may increase printing costs.

Effective Date

The bill was signed into law by the Governor on June 3, 2022, and takes effect August 9, 2022, assuming no referendum petition is filed.
