Summary of Legislation

The Colorado Constitution requires that the Governor appoint the Insurance Commissioner within the Division of Insurance in the Department of Regulatory Agencies, and obtain consent from the Senate. This house concurrent resolution refers a constitutional amendment to voters at the November 2022 election. If approved, the amendment eliminates the requirement that the Insurance Commissioner be appointed by the Governor and confirmed by the senate.

Background

House Bill 22-1161, currently under consideration by the General Assembly, creates a process to elect the Insurance Commissioner and certain other appointed officers beginning in 2024. If voters approve this referred measure, HB 22-1161 contains the statutory changes necessary to conform to the constitutional amendment proposed in HCR 22-1004.

State Expenditures

Election expenditure impact — existing appropriations. This resolution includes a referred measure that will appear before voters at the November 2022 general election. While no additional appropriation is required, certain election costs are incurred by the state when ballot measures are referred. These include reimbursing counties for increased election costs, publishing the text and title of the measure in newspapers across the state, and preparing and mailing the Blue Book.

Effective Date

This resolution was postponed indefinitely by the House State, Civic, Military, and Veterans Affairs Committee on March 3, 2022.
