Summary of Legislation

Under current law, a candidate affiliated with a political party may only designate watchers for the primary election. This bill allows candidates to select watchers for general and congressional vacancy elections, and for any recount for the office of United States senator, representative in congress, and any state office or district office of state concern. If a candidate selects watchers for the central counting facility, the political party associated with that candidate cannot send different or additional watchers to the central counting facility. The political party can still send watchers to voting centers and polling locations, as well as to monitor the signature verification process in accordance with current law.

Local Government

This bill will likely result in more watchers that counties must accommodate during general elections, increasing workload and costs for county clerks. This increase in watchers will occur because multiple candidates can select watchers at covered elections, rather than a political party sending watchers on behalf of all candidates affiliated with that party who are on the ballot.

State Expenditures

The state reimburses counties for a portion of their costs to conduct elections. To the extent accommodating additional watchers increases reimbursable county expenses, state expenditures, paid from the Department of State Cash Fund, will increase under the bill. In addition, the Secretary of State may be required to adopt rules or guidance for county clerks regarding the appointment of watchers.

Effective Date

---

The bill takes effect 90 days following adjournment of the General Assembly sine die, assuming no referendum petition is filed.
