

Colorado Governors' Portraits

First floor – east and west foyers

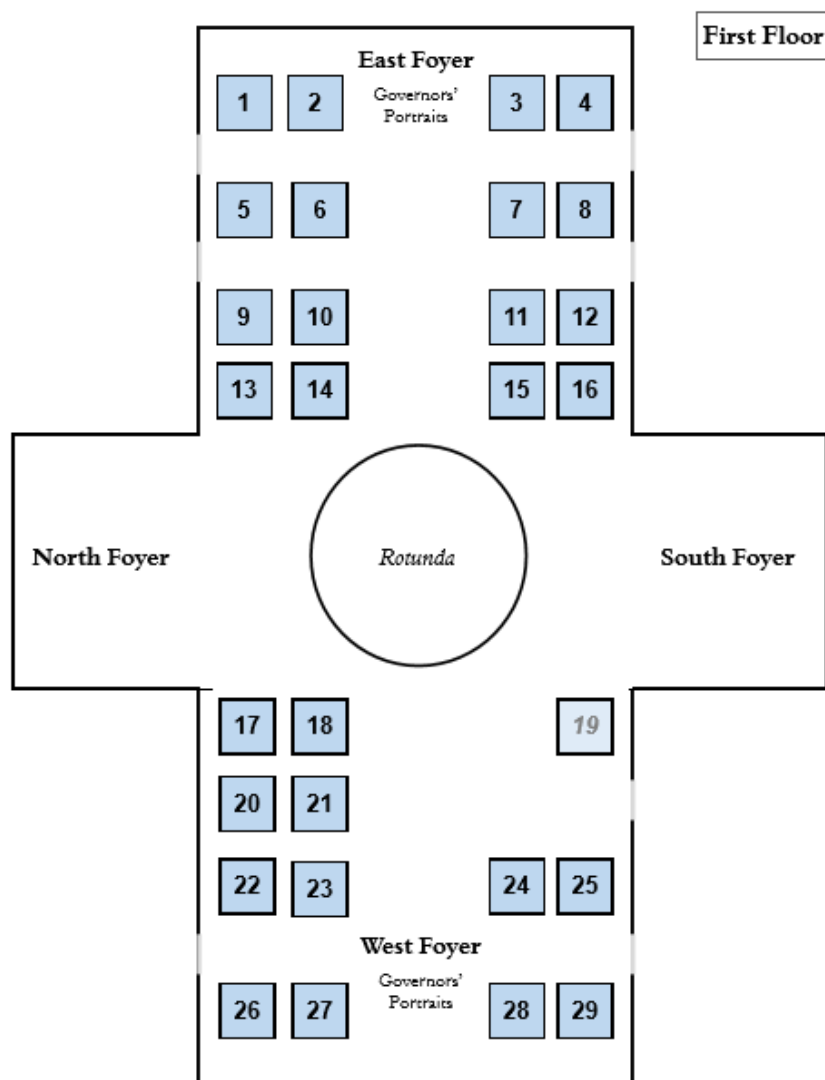

When a Colorado governor finishes his tenure, he often commissions and donates his portrait to the Capitol collection. (While men and women have run for governor of Colorado, as of 2021, only men have been elected.) Of the fifty governors who have served since the time of territorial Colorado, nine portraits have been on view in the West Foyer of the Capitol for years.

But twenty additional portraits now on view were rediscovered when cleaning crews worked to repair damage from a sub-basement flood at the Colorado State Archives in 2014. For years, the portraits sat in canvas bags in a narrow opening between a bookshelf and a wall. Discovered in varying condition after years of neglect, the portraits span 90 years.

Recently these portraits and their original frames underwent extensive restoration by the Western Center for the Conservation of Fine Arts and were installed in the east and west foyers by Bruce Marsden. Of the restored works, the earliest is of Territorial Governor Alexander Cummings (1865-1867) while the newest is of Governor Daniel Thornton (1951-1955). A portrait of Governor John Hickenlooper (2011-2019) is expected to soon join the collection.

Please see the map below to learn more about each of Colorado's governors from the Colorado State Archives.

Below is a list of governor portraits currently on view; note that the collection does not include all governors. For a full list of governors' profiles and records, please visit the Colorado State Archives Governors' Collection website.
