Summary of Measure

The measure prohibits the state or a local government from restricting the use of an energy source for cooking, hot water, generators, or heating systems based on the type of energy to be delivered to an individual consumer.

State Expenditures

Currently, there is not any specific state regulation prohibiting the use of certain energy sources. The measure increases expenditures and workload for state agencies to revise technical assistance to local governments concerning housing and building codes. To the extent that the measure prevents future rules from being adopted, it may also increase workload and legal services for state agencies implementing the state's greenhouse gas emissions reduction plan. No change in appropriations is required.

Local Government

Local governments that currently have or are considering building codes that prohibit certain energy hookups in commercial and residential development will have increased costs to conform the codes with state law, and to modify permitting, inspection, and compliance activities. Similar to the state, the bill will prevent local governments from enacting future restrictions on these sources of energy, which may result in additional workload to consider alternate policy choices for some local governments.

Effective Date

If approved by voters at the 2024 general election, this measure takes effect upon proclamation of the Governor, no later than 30 days after the official canvass of the vote is completed.
