MEDICAL MARIJUANA

History

In 2000, Colorado voters adopted Section 14 of Article XVIII of the state Constitution ("constitutional amendment") legalizing the use of medical marijuana by a patient with a debilitating medical condition. During the 2001 legislative session, the General Assembly adopted the two provisions that the constitutional amendment required. The first codifies medical marijuana unlawful acts. The second created the medical marijuana program in the department of public health and environment. The issue was dormant until 2010, when the general assembly adopted legislation standardizing the medical marijuana patient-physician relationship and created a medical marijuana business regulatory structure.

Medical Marijuana Patients

A medical marijuana patient is an individual who:

- suffers from one of the debilitating conditions listed in the constitutional amendment or a disabling medical condition as defined in Section 25-1.5-106 (2)(a.7), C.R.S.;
- has received a recommendation from a physician stating that he or she suffers from the debilitating or disabling condition and may benefit from the use of medical marijuana; and
- has a medical marijuana registry card or has applied for a card and at least 35 days have passed without a response.

A patient may possess only two ounces of useable medical marijuana and up to six marijuana plants, only three of which are flowering. When in possession of medical marijuana, a patient must possess his or her registry identification card or his or her application if the application

It does not represent an official legal opinion of the General Assembly or the state of Colorado and does not bind the members of the General Assembly. It is intended to provide a general overview of Colorado law as of the date of its preparation. Any person needing legal advice should consult his or her own lawyer and should not rely on the information in this memorandum.

has not been processed. Since the use, possession, and cultivation of marijuana is illegal under state law, there is an affirmative defense or an exception to criminal charges related to a patient's possession or use of medical marijuana. A medical marijuana patient may not grow more than 99 plants. Only a licensed medical marijuana business may grow more than 99 plants. A medical marijuana patient who grows more than six plants is encouraged to register the grow with the marijuana licensing authority.

Physicians

Physicians have the authority to recommend medical marijuana to patients suffering from debilitating or disabling conditions. To recommend medical marijuana, a physician must be in good standing to practice medicine and a bona-fide physician-patient relationship must exist. The bona-fide relationship must include a counseling or treatment relationship, and the physician must consult with the patient in person concerning his or her debilitating or disabling medical condition before making a medical marijuana recommendation. After a physician recommends the use of medical marijuana, he or she certifies the debilitating or disabling medical condition and other information to the department of public health and environment. To prevent questionable recommendations, a physician may not receive payment from or offering payment to a primary caregiver, distributor, or any other provider of medical marijuana. Since the use, possession, and cultivation of marijuana is illegal under state law, the constitutional amendment provides physicians an affirmative defense or an exception to criminal charges for recommending medical marijuana.

If a physician violates the state constitution, state statutes, or promulgated rules related to medical marijuana, there is an enforcement process. The enforcement process is divided between the state board of medical examiners and the department of public health and environment. The state board of medical examiners investigates and sanctions a violation related to a medical marijuana physician's standard of care. For a violation related to an improper medical marijuana recommendation, the department of public health and environment conducts a hearing on an alleged violation and, upon finding a violation, imposes sanctions.

Primary Caregivers

A primary caregiver is defined by the constitutional amendment as a person who has significant responsibility for managing the well-being of a medical marijuana patient. A primary caregiver may be a parent of a child who is on the medical marijuana registry, an advising caregiver who advises a patient on how to use and dose medical marijuana, a transporting primary caregiver who purchases and transports medical marijuana from a medical marijuana center for a homebound patient, or a cultivating caregiver who grows medical marijuana for a patient. A primary caregiver serves no more than five patients on the registry at one time, unless the department of public health and environment grants the primary caregiver a waiver to serve more patients.
A primary caregiver must register his or her medical marijuana cultivation site and all patient identification numbers with the medical marijuana state licensing authority. The information regarding a primary caregiver cultivation location is confidential, except that a local government or law enforcement agency can verify the legality of a cultivation operation. Since the use, possession, and cultivation of marijuana is illegal under state law, the constitutional amendment provides an affirmative defense or an exception to criminal charges related to the possession or cultivation by a primary caregiver. A transporting or cultivating caregiver must register with the marijuana licensing authority and provide patient registry numbers, extended plant counts, and other relevant information that would allow law enforcement to verify with the marijuana licensing authority that the primary caregiver is complying with medical marijuana laws. A person may not register as a primary caregiver if he or she is licensed as a medical marijuana business or works for a licensed medical marijuana business. A cultivating primary caregiver may not grow more than 36 plants at a time unless the primary caregiver has one or more patients who have extended plant counts based on medical necessity. A primary caregiver in all circumstances may not grow more than 99 plants.

State Health Agency

The constitutional amendment charges the state health agency, designated as the department of public health and environment ("department") by the Governor, with overseeing the medical marijuana program and creating a confidential database of registry card-holding medical marijuana patients. The department sets the application fee to cover the costs of administering the medical marijuana program. The department can promulgate rules for the medical marijuana program, including rules to:

- Implement the confidential registry;
- Create an application process and verify applications;
- Issue medical marijuana registry cards;
- Require certain documentation from physicians who recommend medical marijuana;
- Impose sanctions for physicians who violate the act;
- Determine claims of indigence related to the application fee;
- Prescribe communications with law enforcement regarding the registry; and
- Create the process for adding other debilitating conditions that would qualify a patient to seek a medical marijuana registry card.

Based on the 2010 legislation, the department must promulgate new rules to:

- Establish a waiver process to allow a homebound patient to have a primary caregiver transport the patient's medical marijuana from a licensed medical marijuana center and
- Create a sales tax exemption for indigent patients.

And the department may promulgate new rules related to:
• What constitutes significant responsibility for managing the well-being of a patient;
• A primary caregiver registration form;
• What constitutes written documentation; and
• Grounds and a procedure for a patient to change his or her primary caregiver.

The state health agency shall develop and maintain a marijuana laboratory testing reference library. The library must contain a library of methodologies for marijuana testing in the areas of potency, homogeneity, containments, and solvents consistent with the statutory laboratory requirements. The state health agency shall make the reference materials including the methodologies available by December 31, 2015 and shall update the materials as necessary.

Industry Regulation

Licensing: Licensing began on August 1, 2010. The licensing provisions were reviewed under the sunset process during the 2015 session and licensing was continued until September 1, 2019, when there will be another sunset review. The sunset review will also include a review of the medical marijuana program in state health agency.

The department of revenue houses the medical marijuana state licensing authority. The state licensing authority conducts the licensee background checks, licenses medical marijuana businesses, and enforces medical marijuana laws and regulations. Many of the functions and duties of the state licensing authority are similar to the state licensing authority for alcoholic beverages. The licensing authority sets the fees for the licenses it issues.

Local government issues: A local government may ban the sale, distribution, cultivation, and dispensing of medical marijuana by a majority vote of its governing board or a majority vote of its citizens.

Licensed businesses: A licensed medical marijuana center ("center") sells medical marijuana, immature medical marijuana plants, and medical marijuana-infused products to patients. A center must verify the registry card of each purchaser prior to purchase. A center can only sell medical marijuana it cultivates itself or medical marijuana it purchases from another center amounting to less than 30% of its inventory. A center can sell packaged and labeled medical marijuana and medical marijuana-infused products purchased from an infused-product licensee.

A licensed medical marijuana-infused-products manufacturer ("manufacturer") produces medical marijuana-infused products to sell to centers for retail sale. A manufacturer may produce infused products from its own cultivated medical marijuana, if it has an optional cultivation license, or use medical marijuana from up to five different medical marijuana centers in the production of one product. A manufacturer may only have 500 plants on site unless it is granted a waiver by the state licensing authority for more. A manufacturer may sell its products to any center. All infused products must be sealed and labeled. A manufacturer with a cultivation license may not sell any cultivated medical marijuana that is not processed into medical marijuana-infused products. A cannabis credit co-ops is a financial services entity, membership in which is restricted to entities that own or operate a licensed marijuana business or industrial hemp business or that provide goods or services to a licensed marijuana business. Cannabis credit co-ops are subject to regulation by the state commissioner of financial services in a manner similar to that of credit unions. A licensed medical marijuana testing facility performs testing and research on medical marijuana and medical marijuana products for medical marijuana licensees.

Unlawful Acts

Section 18-18-406.3, C.R.S., creates specific unlawful acts related to medical marijuana. These acts include:

- Fraudulent activities to gain a medical marijuana registry card;
- Fraudulent use or theft of another's medical marijuana registry card;
- Fraudulent production or alteration of a medical marijuana registry card; and
- The release of any confidential information from the medical marijuana registry.

Each unlawful act is a class 1 misdemeanor.-
