Dale Fox Against Self	I have seen this from both sides, as a tower and a community member who follows the rules. It is a hardship on people who have the spots they are assigned repeatedly taken by others without concern for anyone but themselves. The tow companies are doing their jobs and some are im sure pushing the charges to the limit or beyond. The CO P.U C Sers the rates towers can charge right down to the fuels surcharge they are allowed to charge consumers. How is letting people of color or low income going to give a fair shake to anyone but those breaking the rules and getting towed? If you want to fix this, go after those who aren't charging within the puclimits or who have no puc registration whatsoever. Ferret those out and punish them educate people to follow the rules and display permit, park in assigned spot, don't bring your junk home and park it like your in the country, its easy, follow the rules and the majority of problems go away. Stop breeding a society of snowflakes who take zero accountability. They get a dui, its the cops fault, car gets towed and it's the tow companies fault, car breaks down because they don't check the oil and it's the car makers fault. It's time to end irresponsible acts by those who blame everyone else, maybe this is where it should start. Thank you!
