

Bartolomé de las Casas' father and uncle were on the first voyage. Las Casas' joined Columbus third to make his fortune too and was appalled at the policies he found. He became a historian.

Attachment 1

Columbus' administration supervised the torture and murder of Indians in groups of 13 supposedly to honor the 12 apostles and our Redeemer. "In lots of thirteen in honor of our Redeemer + his twelve apostles."

2 (p. 15)

3 (p. 48)

